Graduate seminar. How are the long histories of urban spaces experienced, envisioned, and shared? This seminar will examine how architecture, cartography, painting, photography, and related storytelling traditions structure, disseminate, and, on occasion, erase the embodied experiences of a city. Our focus will be Delhi and other selected cities in South Asia.

AH 562 The Art of Native Resistance
Emmanuel Ortega, R, 6.30–9.00 pm, CRN: 33019
This graduate seminar is designed to highlight enduring acts of Native resistance throughout the Americas, from Columbus’ landing in the Caribbean to the Mexican Revolution, 1492–1910. It will demonstrate how cultural production in the Americas can be reevaluated as manifestations of indigenous defiance against colonial and imperial authorities. From popular art to religious monastic painting, the art exposes an incessant dialogue between the need for Native self-rule and the anxiety these movements of resistance caused in the hegemonic and popular imaginary.
